HomeSchool Application Information for the 2018-19 School Year

Enrollment in a charter school is a choice made by parents to participate in the alternative educational approach offered by that charter school. For this reason, it is essential that interested parents become knowledgeable about our approach to education so they can make an informed decision about whether it matches what they want for their child. Our application process includes the following:

Open Application Period: January 29 – April 14, 2018

Applications must be received between Monday, January 29, and noon on Saturday, April 14, 2018, to be included in our first lottery. Order of receipt of applications during the open application period is not a factor in the application process.

For Parents of HomeSchool Applicants:

- HomeSchool Orientation, Saturday, April 14th:
 - HomeSchool Orientation meeting: 10:00-11:30am in the HomeSchool.
 - Adults-only meeting please; call Callie Almand, 824-2276 to sign up in advance.
- HomeSchool application deadline is Saturday, April 14th.

HomeSchool Lottery

Following the open application period, a lottery will be held for each class that has more applicants than available spaces, resulting in a lottery list showing order of enrollment for available spaces. All letters will be mailed to applicants on Wednesday, April 25th, with their number on the lottery list.

Those not offered spaces immediately following the lottery will remain on the waiting list and be notified in order if additional spaces open up either before the school year begins or during the school year.

Waiting lists remain in effect for only the year of application. Those who apply after the open enrollment period will be eligible for available spaces if/when there are no names on the open enrollment waiting lists. When there are multiple applications of this type, a second lottery process will determine order of admission.

Note: To be eligible, a child must be a resident of California at the time of application.

Grade Birthdates

Students will be enrolled or considered for the lottery in each class according to the chart below. Parental concerns about potential grade placement must be submitted in writing with the student's application for the Director's consideration.

2018-19 Birthdates for Class Enrollment:

School Culture

To support our unique educational environment, SunRidge School needs parents to understand the impact of exposure to electronic media on developing children, and to be committed to providing a home environment that does not work at cross purposes to the educational environment provided at school. One of the reasons parents choose our school is because we strive to provide an environment that protects their children from media influences. It is important that new families understand how we must work together to create this environment for all of our students. Please read the Electronic Media Concerns and Guidelines below.

SunRidge School Electronic Media Concerns and Guidelines

In our society, electronic media in all its forms is an ever-growing presence and influence in our lives. As adults we face the difficult choices of deciding how to use various media wisely, and when and how various media should be introduced into the lives of our children.

It is a well-documented fact that the experience of watching television affects the development of children. Strong evidence shows that habitual TV use negatively affects IQ, attention span, reading abilities, imagination, play, language patterns, critical thinking, self-image, perception of others, and moral values. Recent studies indicate that even a single viewing of violent behavior through electronic media can increase violent behavior in children. Habitual use of electronic media affects the child physically as well, altering brain waves, reducing critical eye movements, immobilizing the body, and undermining nutrition, eating habits, and exercise. The content of most TV, video and computer games, and movies shows a glaring disregard for the sensitivity and impressionability of the developing child, and gives commercial interests direct access to a child's forming mind and character.

At SunRidge, there is a conscious intention and effort to provide an educational environment that nurtures the imagination and healthy development of every child. Because electronic media exposure tends to work at cross-purposes to this intention and effort, SunRidge teachers need the support of parents in restricting media use in the home. Similarly, parents who choose our school because they want to protect their children as much as possible from the negative affects of electronic media also need the support of the parents of their children's classmates.

For these reasons, the kindergarten and class teachers request that SunRidge parents protect their children from exposure to electronic media. In order to support the work of the kindergarten teachers to create and maintain an environment that cultivates imagination, wonder and beauty, we ask that you make the necessary changes in your household(s) to eliminate your child's exposure to electronic media. SunRidge's definition of electronic media includes all electronic screen and voice technology devices: radio, TV, videos/DVD's, movies, video games, computers, cell phones, etc.

As a guideline, our expectation is that children from kindergarten through 3rd grade not be exposed to electronic media at all. We ask that any exposure to electronic media with children in grades 4 and 5 be limited to weekends only. Attention to content is particularly important if use is allowed, keeping in mind that electronically received images, language, and meaning lodge in the child's inner being and affect their behavior and sense of well-being at home and at school.

Early adolescence (grades 6-8) marks a time of increased exploration and desire to learn about the world. It also is a time when children do not yet have the maturity to make important life-affecting decisions, and need parental guidance and clear boundaries set by the responsible adults in their lives. We ask that parents of these older students work in partnership with our teachers to limit exposure to electronic media in ways that protect them from its negative influences while also encouraging their increasing capacities for discernment, critical thinking, and self-discipline (i.e., media literacy). We strongly recommend that any TV and movie use be limited to weekends only, and that parents supervise and restrict the use of TV, movies, computer and videogames, the internet, recorded music, and radio use due to the extremely varied content that is present through these media.

We recognize that restricting electronic media use in the home requires a commitment to a family lifestyle that runs counter to our mainstream culture. We also recognize that protecting children from media exposure is especially challenging in homes where older siblings are present, and when a child lives in more than one household. A whole-hearted effort to thoughtfully protect children from media exposure can only be successful when we educate ourselves about the affects of electronic media on children, and then exercise continual determination to go "against the grain" in order to do what we believe is most healthy for them. We ask that every parent join us in this challenging, but so very important, commitment.
